Gentlemen:

I am trespassing upon you again in regard to some old coins of which we have just taken some casts. I am sending you rubbings as perhaps better than our casts. The coins are said to have been found on the site of ancient Troy but are plainly much later.

I am sending too a rubbing of a copper found by a small boy on the street here. I take it that is commemorative of General Washington.

Will you tell us what you can of them all,

And greatly pblige,

Yours very truly,

W.W.Fowler, Director.

Gentlemen: Attention: W. W. Fowler, Director

I am herewith returning your rubbings with the attributions. All of these could have been found on the site of ancient Troy, as the Roman city lasted into the Middle Ages. It is now known as Hissarlik.

1. Justin II and Sophia
2. Romanus I
3. Leo VI
4. Heraclius I
5. Constantius II as Caesar.

Very truly yours,
